

A SHOWER OF HOT BIRD SHOT.

Inhabitants of Santa Cruz, California, Experience Wonderful Phenomenon—Metallic Rain Due to Meteor.

Santa Cruz, Cal., Jan. 6.—It rained hot bird shot at Santa Cruz today for nearly an hour, according to Mrs. W. H. Burns and her neighbors. Some of the shot have been preserved.

Made Barefoot Children Dance.

Mrs. Burns' curiosity was aroused to-day by the peculiar action of a number of barefoot children who were playing in front of her house. When she asked them what was the matter they told her that the air was full of electricity and that hot shot were falling from the clouds. She then heard a clatter on the house top that sounded like hail and she saw little white threads of steam rising from neighboring roofs. This steam was found to be the result of the dropping of little hot globules on the damp shingles.

Shower Lasted an Hour.

This molar rain continued from about 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and varied in intensity. At one time the children, who were barefooted and unshod, were compelled to take to cover. One boy curries a burn on his finger where one of these hot pellets struck him.

An Exploded Meteor?

One theory to account for the phenomenon was that the metallic rain was due to a meteor. The pellets are about the size of No. 8 shot and resemble lead.

$4,000 RETURN ON TEN CENTS.

Purchaser of Old Material Found Really Good Investment.

John Roberts of Watkins, Schuyler county, a well drilled, recently purchased of Angelo Dupree, a junk dealer, an old pump for ten cents. It was apparently of no value, but he thought there might be some parts that he could use in his business. When Mr. Roberts and his assistant took the pump to one of the wells they were drilling and started breaking it up, they were greatly surprised to see gold coins drop out of the holes they made. They at once finished the job, and found $4,000, nearly all in $20 gold pieces. Whom the pump belonged to at the time the money was hidden, or how long it had been there, is a mystery. The latest date of one of the coins was 1853. Mr. Roberts at once deposited his find in the Farmers' and Merchants' bank at Watkins. He is willing to surrender the find to anyone who can prove ownership, but no claimant has yet appeared. The junk man will make a memorandum to examine the inside of every old pump before disposing of it at any price.—Utica (N. Y.) Press.

What He Meant.

An old sea captain was visiting a certain exhibition, and was greatly interested in the mechanical section, where a fine array of steam whistles was on show. "How far can that one be heard?" he asked, pointing to a huge "buzzer." The young man in attendance was only a deputy, but he promptly replied: "Sixteen miles." "Sixteen miles?" said the old salt incredulously. "When I say 16 miles," elaborated the youth, "I mean eight miles this way and eight miles that way."

Splendid.

"That's a fine looking maid you have now, dear."

"Yes, she's a darling, and she came to me highly recommended."

"Knows all about the latest styles of maiding, I suppose."

"Oh, so far as knowing the duties of a maid goes, I don't suppose she knows a thing."

"But she came highly recommended, you said?"

"Yes, she broke the jaw of the last man who tried to kiss her."—Houston Post.

HEIR TO A MILLION.

The man felt some one clutch his arm.

"You're just the one I've wanted to see. Been looking for you for days. Your uncle has just died, and left you heir to a million dollars."

"My uncle?" gasped the man. "You've mistaken your man, sir. I have no such convenient uncle."

"Of course you didn't know you had But it's gospel truth. Your name is William Richards, isn't it?"

"You're right, but—"

"No buts; come with me."

In a dazed fashion he followed the lawyer, overhauling him with questions, but getting little satisfaction. All he could learn was that a certain Charles Richards, rich mine owner in the far west, had died and named his nephew William of New York as sole heir.

There could be no mistake, the lawyer assured him. They had carefully investigated this matter and had found him after diligent search. The thing for him to do now was to enjoy his good fortune.

And enjoy it he did with all that money could buy. His house and its furnishings were of the finest, his stables were well stocked and many servants did his bidding. Life to him was a succession of pleasures. He mingled with the best society and soon became one of the most popular young men in the city.

At a time he met her, the beautiful woman who became his wife, and shared with him his strangely acquired fortune.

He had long since ceased to wonder at it. His life was a round of gayety and enjoyment.

One night he was giving a grand ball. The rich and the beautiful were there. He was standing a little apart from the gay throng alone, looking at and enjoying the beauty of the scene, the beautiful faces of the women, the magnificent gowns, the flowers, the sweet and subdued tones of the music. Yes, it was all very beautiful, and he had his unknown uncle to thank for it all. He felt to missing about him, as he often did.

A hand clutching his arm aroused him with a start from his reverie, and a gruff voice said in his ear: "You're just the man I've been looking for. You're Richards, I guess."

"You're right," he said in a dazed fashion: "has some one died and left me heir to a million dollars?"

"You've been talking about that million dollars for the last half hour. Forget it. Slippery Richards, and come along with me peacefully."

With a sudden crash the music stopped, the gay scene vanished and Richards opened his eyes.

He was spread full length on a hard park bench, on which he now remembered flinging himself some time before in sheer exhaustion. Before him in the path, arms akimbo and feet firmly planted, stood a burly policeman, on the alert. Escape was impossible—and he had successfully evaded the police for so many years. It was too bad. But there was no hope for him now.

"The next time you steal a few cool thousands, wait till night to do your sleeping and dreaming, friend," said the officer in jovial tones, as he thought of the big reward soon to be his for capturing the far-famed Slippery Richards.—Boston Post.

BLIND PEOPLE SWIM STRAIGHT.

Keep Course with Marvelous Directness, Guided by Sound.

Just as some professional singers with magnificent voices never learn to sing in perfect time, so do the trainers of really fine swimmers often find it impossible that men with every quality for racing otherwise can be made or taught to swim even in an approximately straight line.

Many a splendid swimmer is beaten on this account, for his inveterate habit of getting off his course naturally gives him a roundabout journey. But the remarkable fact remains that blind swimmers of whom there are in this country a considerable number in connection with various institutions for persons so afflicted—universally and without exception swim with marvelous directness; indeed, in as perfectly straight a line as is humanly possible, even when the distance covered is very considerable.

Blind swimmers can, it appears, on hearing a noise in any given direction not only swim absolutely straight to the point whence the noise proceeds, but when left to themselves their steering is just as accurate.

PAPA IN HIS BOYHOOD DAYS.

Not the Paragon of Virtue He Would Like Sons to Be.

There is a dear old lady in up-town home who doesn't take much stock in new-fangled surgery. More especially she shies at the theory that wayward boys can be cured of their bad inclinations by having their brains alkali with a knife.

The other day her grandson came to her.

"Grandma," he said, "was papa a pretty naughty boy when he was as old as we?"

"I'm sorry to say he was, George. He headed all the mischief for miles around."

"Now, mother," remonstrated George's father, "it wasn't quite as bad as that."

"You know it was, James," retorted the old lady. "And I won't have you holding yourself up as a model for your boys."

"Say, grandma," George interrupted, "do you think it would have done papa any good if the doctor had cut into his head like mamma was reading about?"

The old lady laughed.

"In the first place, they couldn't have caught him," she said. "And in the next place they would have had to cut off his head to do him any good."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Scotland's Patron Saint.

Why was St. Andrew chosen as the patron saint of Scotland? This question has been asked many times, but the archdeacon of whom Dean Hole tells may be considered to have discovered the most satisfactory solution of the problem. "Gentlemen," said he (he was speaking at a St. Andrew's day banquet at the time), "I have given this difficult subject my thoughtful consideration, and I have come to the conclusion that St. Andrew was chosen to be the patron saint of Scotland because he discovered the lad who had the loaves and fishes."

Keep Your Eyes on the Ground.

In walking about the Australian gold fields it is always advisable to keep your eyes on the ground. You can never tell when you may kick up a nugget—or fall down a deserted shaft.

From Tarragulla, a district that has been very prolific in valuable nuggets, comes news of a remarkable find. A man walking across the fields picked up what he thought was a mushroom. It proved to be a nugget and contained £50 worth of gold.

Simple Recipe to Make Home-made Harmless Kidney Cure.

To make up enough of the "Dandelion treatment," which is claimed to be relieving nearly every sufferer who uses it for backache, kidney complaint, sore, weak bladder and rheumatism, get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon and three ounces Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

Those who have tried it claim that it acts gently but thoroughly on the kidneys, relieving backache and bladder trouble and urinary difficulties before you realize it. Many cases of rheumatism are known to have been relieved within a few days, the pain and swelling diminishing with each dose.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after while.

Aesop Up to Date.

Thinking it was a cinch, the jungle sports decided to repeat the rabbit-tortoise race where they could get a good audience.

So they re-matched it, giving a large prize to the winner and a slightly smaller one to the loser. The hare did better this time and the result was reversed.

And so both got vaudeville engagements, for both were champions. And nobody took much interest in either of them after that.

Moral—The race is not always to the swift, but the boodle goes to the professionals.

An Old-Fashioned Clock.

One of the most remarkable survivals of primitive time-measuring appliances in England may be found to-day among the flint knappers of Brandon. It consists of a candle stuck into a candle stick, often made of a lump of chalk, or of a piece of perforated draught brick. Into the candle are fixed tiny splinters of flint at intervals, ascertained by experience, of one hour's burning duration, so that when a splinter drops the knapper knows he has worked one hour, and so on, and is thus able to ascertain how many gun flints he turns out in a given time.

Won't Catch Anything.

"You have the alarm clock I gave you?"

"Yes, suh," answered Mr. Erastus Pinkley.

"And you set it every night?"

"Yes, suh. But tain't no use. I been settin' it regular for two weeks an' I ain't cotched nuffin' yet!"

International Criticism.

Pat—Sure, and in Scotland they murder the styles entirely.

Bridge—Sure, and how do they do it.

Pat—Why, they're kilt entirely.

Rev. Samuel Brewster Eddy, pastor of the Trinity Congregational church, of East Orange, has accepted the secretaryship of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions.

ENGLAND'S MANY DEER PARKS.

Four Hundred of Them Are Said to Dot the Little Island.

"A park without a deer," wrote Richard Jefferies, "is like a wall without a picture," and it is something to know that in England there are 400 parks containing deer; that they average hundreds and some of them thousands of acres, and that Yorkshire, Gloucestershire, Staffordshire, Northants and Sussex have more enclosed land given up to deer than any other counties.

There is something peculiarly national about our deer parks, for soon after the Conquest the barons began to enclose parks within the forests and to include within them all the wild animals that could then be secured. Of these the 2,500 acres of park at Domesday is the only one mentioned in the oldest book on containing deer then as it does now.

In that now scarce book, Shirley's "English Deer Parks," 45 parks are mentioned which no longer contain deer, but since that book was published in 1867 several parks have been stocked which did not then contain deer, and there are others in which the deer have been given up.—London Daily Graphic.

WOMAN PULLS HEAVIEST LOAD.

Point of View Which is Seldom Given Adequate Consideration.

For centuries woman has been, with comparatively few exceptions, a plaything or drudge, overlooked in pleasure and ill-treated in pain, a burden whose weight few men can conceive. A system that places upon woman's shoulders three-quarters of the burden is inevitably degrading. A man receives credit for supporting his family even when the wife, by working early and late, contrives to turn his earnings into a value treble that of the original amount. The difference in the value of a barrel of flour as it is purchased and after it has been made into bread has been reckoned many times—but "the man," and not the woman, "supports the family."

Nor is a woman's work done when an income has been stretched to its limit. If a money value could be placed upon her work as mother and wife—not that any one wishes to do such a thing—it would indeed be clear that the woman pulls the heaviest part of the load. That such a condition should carry with it its antithesis in the woman who is a drone and a rattle brain is but natural.—Collier's Weekly.

Wherein Girls Are Superior to Boys.

At an early age the boy begins to practice on the outside world with his hand and eye, and while he is throwing, cutting, hammering, calculating distance and playing competitive games the girl is sitting at home in a pretty frock. But in activities not requiring great strength and speed the boy is not superior. The fastest typist in the world is to-day a woman; the record for roping steers (a feat where the horse does the heavy work), is held by a woman; and any one who will watch girls making change before the pneumatic tubes in the great department stores about Christmas time will experience the same wonder one feels on first seeing a professional gambler shuffling cards.—American Magazine.

An Unsavory Charity.

In all the cafes and beer halls of Germany a large canister is placed on a table in the center of each establishment. Every time one of the guests lights a fresh cigar he gets up and deposits in the canister the end of the one he has just been smoking. This receptacle is a sort of alms-box with a funnel-shaped lid, secured by means of a padlock. A charitable association supplies all places of public resort with these boxes for the purpose of collecting odd ends and ends of tobacco cigarettes and cigars. The produce of the sale is devoted to the purchase of clothing, which is distributed among poor children at Christmas. The charity is believed to be the most maledorous and unsavory on record.

Benefit of Gymnastics to Golfers.

On the subject of gymnastics and golf Capt. Hutchinson, who holds a gymnastic appointment in the Coldstream Guards, reports: "While actually going through five hours' daily work in the gymnasium I found that the heavy work was certainly detrimental to golf. But I think that it eventually proved of the greatest assistance, as it strengthened the muscles of the wrist and forearm, which play such an important part in all golfing strokes. I found it necessary to shorten my swing a little, and took to the overlapping or Vardon grip, two changes that certainly improved my game."—London Standard.

His Qualifications.

Traveling along a country road a revenue officer was attracted by frightful screams coming from a house not far from the road. Trying his horse he ran to the house and found that a little boy had swallowed a quarter, and his mother, not knowing what to do, was frantic. The revenue officer caught the little fellow by the heels and, holding him up, gave him a few shakes, whereupon the coin dropped to the floor. "Well, mister," said the grateful mother, "you certainly know how to get it out. Are you a doctor?" "No, madam," replied the official, "I'm a collector of internal revenue."

WHEN you want to put your business before the public, there is no medium better than through the advertising columns of the Bulletin.

Atchison Globe Reveals Secret.
A former chief of police of Atchison, the Globe says, had a wide reputation because he was a friend of women. When a mad woman called on him and said, haughtily: "I called to see you about a little matter," he promptly replied: "I am glad you did. There is a good deal of complaint in your neighborhood about your temper, and I want to say that if I hear any more about it I will put a stop to it in a way you won't like," etc., etc. In short, the secret is that the chief chewed the rag first, and kept at it without giving the woman a chance to say a word. Men should remember this when approached by a mad woman, the man should attack first, and keep quarreling until the woman cries.

Matta's Pest is Muskrat.
Matta's objectionable pest is the common muskrat. He intrudes into every house, and everything he touches is impregnated with the odor from which he derives his name. If he enters a ladder he is more destructive than a dozen cats. In a wine cellar he is worse than a dishonest butler. From pure wantonness he taluts and renders unseatable everything within his reach. He will ruin dozens of bottles of beer by merely running over them, so powerful and at the same time so penetrating is his offensive odor. This Matta muskrat is a squeaking little animal, who adds to his evil ways by disturbing the repose of the victims of his degradations.

Two Kinds of Criticisms.
"I am going to read you my sonnet to 'Furrowed's Left Elbow,'" announced Miss Anna Teutrits to her betrothed. "It was you to give me a perfectly frank criticism, just the simple truth, as though you did not know me at all."

When she had finished, her lover spoke solemnly: "I do not dare to speak frankly, but I will say that there is a trace of a hint of a possible future promise."

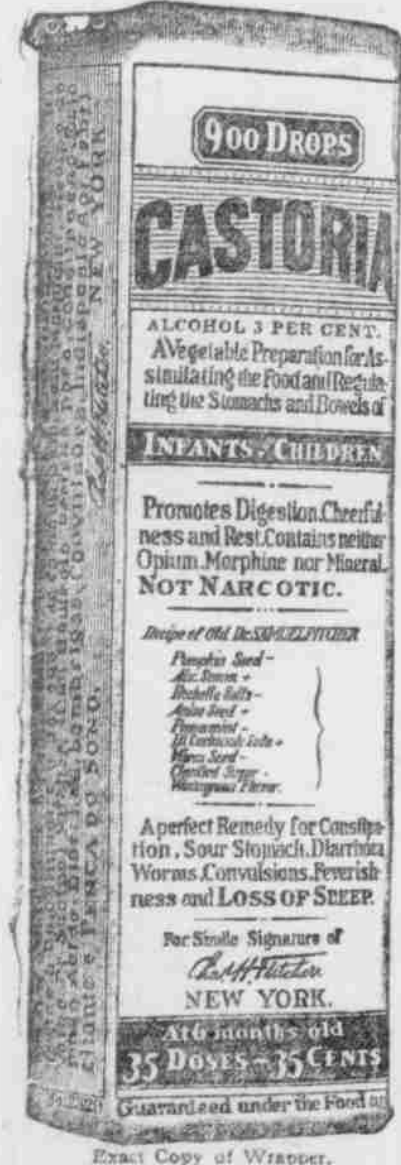

The following week she married a freight hauler who had worshipped her for years and who declared that the sonnet was finer's gift.

Mary Ryan, aged 32 years, who stored to death in an attic at Tammam, Mass., left $3,500 to church and charity.

Why Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless; Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food; Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians Addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. W. L. Leister, of Rogers, Ark., says: "As a practicing physician I use Castoria and like it very much."

Dr. W. T. Seeley, of Amity, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria for several years in my practice and have found it a safe and reliable remedy."

Dr. Raymond M. Evans, of Santa Ynez, Cal., says: "After using your Castoria for children for years it annoys me greatly to have an ignorant druggist substitute something else, especially to the patient's disadvantage, as in this case. I enclose herewith the wrapper of the imitation."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

Dr. W. F. Wallace, of Bradford, N. H., says: "I use your Castoria in my practice, and in my family."

Dr. Wm. J. McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine and aside from my own family experience, I have, in my years of practice, found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. Howard James, of New York City, says: "It is with great pleasure that I desire to testify to the medicinal virtue of your Castoria. I have used it with marked benefit in the case of my own daughter, and have obtained excellent results from its administration to other children in my practice."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always say that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Channing H. Cook, of Saint Louis, Mo., says: "I have used your Castoria for several years past in my own family and have always found it thoroughly efficient and never objected to by children, which is a great consideration in view of the fact that most medicines of this character are obnoxious and therefore difficult of administration. As a laxative I consider it the peer of anything that I ever prescribed."

Dr. F. H. Kyle, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "It affords me pleasure to add my name to the long list of those who have used and now endorse your Castoria. The fact of the ingredients being known through the printing of the formula on the wrapper is one good and sufficient reason for the recommendation of any physician. I know of its good qualities and recommend it cheerfully."

Dr. H. J. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. Wm. L. Boserman, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I am pleased to speak a good word for your Castoria. I think so highly of it that I not only recommend it to others, but have used it in my own family."
